President's Message

President Parry Bragg helps Sevilla Young cut the ribbon opening the 2023 (64th) VNA Convention.

I would like to thank all the volunteers who worked before, during, and after to make the 64th successful. I particularly want to thank Richard Schornak, (Bourse Chair) and Moore Gouldmann (Exhibits Chair). I understand most dealers enjoyed reasonable sales and purchases, without any untoward events. Your VNA officers are already working on the next (65th) VNA convention to be held in 2024. We want the convention to be a great educational event. If sales are good, then it will be a complete success.

Remember, the 2024 convention will be held in Richmond, Virginia. at the Richmond International Raceway (RIR) on Laburnum Avenue. This change of venue was not of our doing, but our traditional dates for the convention were given to another event, and not wanting to compete with other shows, we needed to find another venue. After looking at several locations there was only one that would schedule all four days in September. The RIR is a central location and not far from hotels, interstates and the airport, and has a huge parking lot. We hope this location will be good for the VNA, dealers, and the public.

Moore Gouldmann has done a fantastic job as Exhibits Chair and as I knew, he has burned himself out and relinquished his position. At our last VNA Board meeting, Ed Lewis has taken on Exhibits Chair for the future, and with the assistance and help from Moore, I think he will make a good replacement. I hope all have a wonderful holiday, and all will be safe and happy. I will be seeing many of you at meetings, shows, and other events soon.

Thanks, and be safe!

Parry Bragg - VNA President

Tom Kays - Editor

VNA Fall 2023 Education Program

At the 2023 VNA Convention we held seven educational classes for BOTH youth and adults. We offered ongoing youth treasure hunts throughout the convention hall with continuous Q&A discussions over a multitude of numismatic subjects. We held two raucous live-bid auctions for the youth with a record total of 140 attendees (85 adults, 35 homeschooled, and 20 addition youth) during the 3-day program. Over 3,500 coins were given out. We learned much. Adults who did not attend our fine education programs missed the some of the highlights of the convention. Many program-related free coins were also given out to our adult attendees.

Our very special speakers at the 2023 VNA Convention included:

- Tom Wood (Ephesus Numismatics, Durham, N.C) - Biblical Coins of the Holy Land
- Tom Kays (Editor of the Virginia Numismatist) - History of Early American Coins
- Jeff Garrett (past ANA president) - Kentucky Gold Hoard Discovery
- Mary Lynn Garrett (ANA Board of Directors) Overview of ANA's Educational Programs
- Dennis Fortier (Historian) - Historical Liberty Seated Coin Series 1836-1891
- Keith Littlefield (Virginia Currency author) - Fredericksburg Postal History
- John Philips (VNA Education Director) - Ways to bond families through coin collecting

The VNA specially thanks donors of coins, tokens, medals, currency, and collection supplies to our ongoing educational program... Morgan Saxby – who gifted a huge coin collection to the VNA, Larry Rohr (RCC, VNA), John Philips (RCC, VNA), Bob & Judy Richmon (RCC), George Watson (VNA), Richard Schornak (VNA), Dave Pratt (Fairfax CC), Parry Bragg (VNA), and Bob Keeler (self-appointed mayor of Beaverdam, VA), and other donors who we may have inadvertently omitted.

High Relief “Pop-Out” Coins

By Mark Switzer and Tom Kays

Fraternal Order of Elks Pop-Out by George Kepler on 1902 Dollar

Not all coin collectors shy away from post-mint “damage.” Love tokens, trench art, counterstamps, and hobo nickels are avidly collected by some, as these “alterations” may enhance the value of the host coin. Consider another overlooked, classic collectible of artistic panache, that arose at the vanguard of Teddy Roosevelt’s “Renaissance of American Coinage.”

Repoussé is a method of decorating flat metals in which parts of the design are raised in relief from the back or inside of the article by means of hammers and punches with further definition added from the front by chasing or engraving. Repoussé metal-working techniques were practiced in Europe by armorers since the 1500s. Modern techniques use hydraulic presses and sets of dies to make three-dimensional, high relief alterations commonly known as “pop-outs” although sometimes called “push-out” or “pop-up” coins. Little has been written about collecting pop-outs. Many pop-out coins were further modified into jewelry, hat pins, brooches, bar pins, cuff links, tie bars, watch fobs, rings, pendants, and even belt buckles. Novelty coin “pop-outs” became popular one hundred and twenty years ago. Coin collectors may be familiar with the most common pop-out designs such as the “Goddess of Liberty - Emergent,” or perhaps Abraham Lincoln, but many other images popped, including animals, Native Americans, all the martyred presidents, kings, explorers, and logos of religious and fraternal organizations.

The pop-out process “to make ornamental buttons from disks” (or coins) was first patented in America in 1903 by William A. Malliet of Hackensack, New Jersey. A competitor, George Kepler of New York, independently patented a different pop-out process in 1904. Original pop-outs have a tiny “patent bar” on the reverse with incuse patent data inscribed. “Patents pending” give only a month and year, while awarded patents show a specific date. “PAT.FEB.03” indicates Malliet’s patent was still pending on his earliest work, only found on host coins dated 1903 or earlier. “PAT.AUG.11.03” indicates Malliet’s post award work often found on later date hosts. “PAT.NOV.22.1904” cites award of Kepler’s competing patent.

Original pop-outs were hosted on high-grade Indian head cents, Barber dimes/quarters/half dollars, Morgan silver dollars, and a few are known on gold coins as well as on foreign coins of Canada, France, and Panama from 1903-1904. Very few pop-outs were hosted on nickels (due to hardness).

Handsome Early Pop-Outs on Foreign Coin Hosts: Vasco Nuñez de Balboa on Panamanian Host and King Edward VII on Canadian Host

The pop-out jewelry market flourished in Chicago with many items sold by the Kalo Shop, an “Arts and Crafts Movement” jewelry workshop, founded in 1900 by six women graduates of the Art Institute of Chicago, and known for hand-wrought metalwork, silversmithing, and copper working. They made silverware, hollowware and jewelry intended to be beautiful, useful, and enduring. They opened a New York shop on Fifth Avenue in 1912, that only lasted until World War I when skilled metalworkers were conscripted to work in naval shipyards.

Watch Fobs - Goddess of Liberty Emergent on 1912 Half Dollar and Freemason "Square and Compasses" with "G" on 1908 Half Dollar

The novelty of pop-outs quickly wore off about a decade after they were introduced with few pop-outs made after 1912 and with little output for nearly a half a century thereafter. The art of pop-outs revived in 1964 with demand for President Kennedy keepsakes, and continued through the 1980s with Ronald Reagan pop-outs. Some recall seeing with disdain the new wave of pop-outs as gimmicks of the 1960s, manufactured with a poor level of sophistication. They did not recall the fine work that the original pop-outs exhibit.

Pop-Out for John Kennedy on 1968 Half Dollar - These modern Pop-outs lack the fine workmanship of classic Pop-Outs

Classic pop-outs required a multi-piece set of anvil, collar, and hammer dies, and took as many as twenty steps to produce. The Malliet Process required the flat head on the face of the coin to be cut out and the new 3-D head to be rendered pliable and shaped into a pre-determined form. It was then soldered, brazed, or welded back onto the original disk (coin) which had been rendered convex, then scored, chased, or cut to give the appearance of a jagged opening through which the head emerges. The entire product would be oxidized, burnished, or ornamented with gilding or enameling to set off a contrast between the coin disk and the form of the head. The button or medallion would then be worked into various articles of jewelry using applied loops, chains, hat pins, or watch clips.

Martyred Presidents Abraham Lincoln / James Garfield / William McKinley on 1904 Host Dime / Quarter / Half Dollar

Retirement of original dies was not well accounted for. Many still exist today. Even sets of old master dies and hubbing stock (positive relief [raised] punches on the end of steel rods) used to make new dies, are still in the public domain. Replicas, forgeries, and fantasies including cast copies and low-grade counterfeits of classic pop-outs have appeared since the 1960s.

Robert J. Stump collected pop-outs, tracked sales, and retail values, but passed away in 2011 just days after sending his book to the printers. His friends and heirs posthumously published his 83-page, spiral bound manuscript about “Pop-Out Repoussé Coins,” said to be the first and only price guide about these beautiful, but off-the-beaten-track numismatic creations. A sold-out, limited run of only 100 copies makes this reference book a hard to find item.

The VNA thanks Mark Switzer for letting us peek at many of the finest and rarest examples of classic and contemporary Pop-Out art.
